Samaha+Hart Architecture is a San Francisco based office established in 2006 by Bassel Samaha and Heather Hart. The firm's work is by design diverse; with a range of residential and commercial projects that vary in scale. The aspirations of each client and the characteristics of every site are individually and uniquely considered. The office is committed to producing work which is conceptually based and rigorously detailed; incorporating innovative materials and sustainable practices.

The Noe Valley Light Box is an addition/remodel of a single family house. The centerpiece of the design is a new staircase; constructed of steel, glass and resin, which connects all three levels of the house and filters natural light down to the lowest level and deep into each room.

OPPOSITE: The Los Altos Residence, in collaboration with KallosTurin, is a new single family home on a tight suburban lot. The house is organized into four staggered levels, each of which has direct access to a patio, balcony or sunken courtyard.
